About OJ Haugen

After the articles, I plan to turn to making accessible what I have identified as rich veins of Knowledge hidden-in-plain-sight in the barren outcropping of contemporary Ignorance. If the most successful person is the one with the best information (Disraeli), then the most successful society is the one with the best information. (Contemporary society is a wreck.) Therefore, I will release translations into plain English and summaries of a set of knowledge resources that I have surgically identified as containing an exceptional density of knowledge per cubic meter.

These resources in the order I roughly plan to work on them (publishing my "translations" as books) are:

(1) Leo Strauss, who tells, or at least indicates the existence of, the awe-inspiring true story, in the spirit of natural science (sociology?), of the great men of Western history that built the world we have today with all of its promise (I like to put it thus: "We know their names, but we don't know what they actually did that was great")

(2) The Bible, which, as Strauss seems to hint, is, like Strauss's work, an exacting work of natural history (the first chapter of Genesis, among much else, records the literal creation of us, sapiens, by neanderthals, and not the creation of the earth - certainly not "heaven")

(3) Aristotle, who covertly predicts much of modern science while superseding it with his own surface ideas (!) when these ideas are properly understood, when they are understood after the emergence of modern science (we will finally understand why, as Strauss notes, Maimonides likens Aristotle to the Bible)

(4) an organization, that will go unnamed for now, whose published writings improve almost all areas of physics to the degree of scientific strength and explanatory power that - as Einstein prophesied - a gifted six-year-old could understand their ideas, while purposely smuggling in mistakes into their own work (I will attempt to identify and correct their planted mistakes, while summarizing their work)

(5) Ernest Fortin, who, as a student of Strauss, gives the true history of Western Christianity

things. Indeed, perhaps knowledge of God is what distinguishes the great men treated in these works from the rest of us. God is Nature. Here is the areat array of gigantic machines to destroy us, with its ideologies marshalled to infect us with its soulless will. The Moloch of Modern Ideas and its hierophants are a far greater destructive force for us than the peaceful courses of the stars and the occasional disquietude of volcanoes or hurricanes. It is not Nature, but they that is our enemy. Nature is indeed our friend. . . We worship, if we worship, still the virgin-goddess, the stars on the ocean, the break-of-day: the natural magic that inspired our earliest beliefs."
